Bio:

Dr. Scott Seaman serves the Executive Director of the Association of Washington School Principals. He’s been leading the support of school principals and assistant principals in his state for the past twelve years. Prior to that Scott was a principal in a large comprehensive high school for 15 years. Scott is also a key founding leader and contributor of the national School Leader Collaborative and School Leader Paradigm which is quickly gaining traction across the country as a key resource in leadership development and support. Scott earned his doctoral degree from the University of Washington’s renowned Leadership for Learning program. He’s married to his elementary school sweetheart with two adult children who both live on the east coast. If he’s not working to support leaders, you’ll find him running with his GSP, skiing, or wing foiling across big waves and the wind.
